

TIMELINE

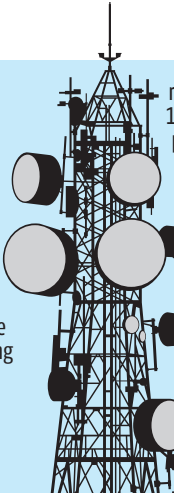

1994

With the introduction of the National Telecom Policy, a number of companies were issued telecom licences, for which they were expected to pay a fixed fee every year

1999

The service providers failed to pay the licence fee and had to be given a bailout package according to a July 22 letter

According to this letter, service providers had to pay a certain portion of their adjusted gross revenue (AGR) as licence fee August 1, 1999. The government was to decide the proportion of AGR to be charged as licence fee after receiving the recommendations of the Telecom Regulatory Authority of India (Trai)

After the licence agreement was amended and an AGR-based mechanism was introduced, all service providers had to pay their license fees on the basis of the AGR definition prescribed by the government

The department of telecommunications (DoT) challenged in the Supreme Court the TDSAT's jurisdiction over terms of the telecom licences that had previously been accepted unconditionally by licencees

In an order, dated January 19, the SC dismissed the DoT's appeal, and directed it to raise its contentions before the TDSAT

On August 30, the TDSAT accepted most of Trai's recommendations and passed an order that would be applicable to those Unified Telecom Service Providers of India (Auspil) members that had moved the TDSAT with effect from the date when they filed their petitions

Auspil and the Cellular Operators

Association of India (COAI) filed a review petition urging that the TDSAT order be made applicable to all members of the two bodies from the date of filing of their petition

DoT again moved the Supreme Court against the August 30 TDSAT order

Even as the DoT appeal was pending before the apex court, some telcos filed petitions before TDSAT requesting to be included in the tribunal's August 30 order

The Supreme Court on October 11 held that the TDSAT's August 30, 2007, order should be set aside. It allowed licencees to challenge any demand before the TDSAT, which would have to go into the merits of the claim and decide whether it was in accordance with the licence agreement and in consonance with the AGR definition

All telecom licencees moved the TDSAT challenging the basis of DoT's licence fee demand

2015

On April 23, the TDSAT allowed operators' petitions and set aside DoT's demands. It directed DoT to rework the licence fees

DoT moved the Supreme Court against the TDSAT order

2019

The Supreme Court, having heard all arguments in the case, held that telecom operators could not be given any relief with respect to pending licence fee claims

Voda Idea can go broke on upfront payment: Experts

Stakeholders upset, given India's telecom tariffs are among lowest in world

ROMITA MAJUMDAR & RAM PRASAD SAHU
Mumbai, 24 October

The Supreme Court's verdict allowing the Centre to recover ₹92,641 crore in adjusted gross revenue (AGR) from telecom operators will impact the incumbent — privately owned Bharti Airtel and Vodafone Idea (VIL) — the hard, analysts said.

The extent of the impact will, however, depend on how soon the government chooses to secure the payment and the size of payments.

The definition of AGR has been a long-standing issue between the telcos and the Department of Telecom (DoT). Telcos pay licence fee and spectrum charges in the form of revenue share to the government. Simply put, the revenue amount, which is used to calculate this revenue share, is known as AGR. While DoT thinks that income earned from sources like bank deposits be included as AGR, telcos feel income from core telecom services should only be considered.

Stakeholders expressed disappointment with the judgment, given that the India's telecom tariffs are among the lowest in the world.

“The verdict will have a devastating impact on the telcos. Vodafone Idea will be worst hit with over ₹28,000 crore impact,” said Naveen Kulkarni, head of research at Reliance Securities.

WHERE THEY STAND

Airtel & Vodafone Idea's net debt to Ebitda ratio in case the claimed amount is paid (₹ cr)

	Airtel		Voda Idea
Net debt	116,600		99,300
Net debt to Ebitda	4.2		25.7
Estimated payout	21,700		28,300

Debt figures as of Q1; Airtel's numbers use IndAS 116, while Vodafone Idea does not Source: IIFL Institutional Equities

Around ₹50,000 crore of the ₹92,641-crore dues are owed by existing private telecom operators in the industry. While VIL owes ₹28,308 crore, Airtel has to pay ₹21,682 crore. Reliance Jio, the newest entrant, owes just ₹13 crore to the Department of Telecom (DoT), according to initial estimates.

The remaining ₹40,540 crore is owed by telcos that have shut shop or are under debt resolution proceedings like Reliance Communications (₹10,456 crore), Aircel (₹7,852 crore) and Tata Teleservices (₹9,987 crore). These telcos shut shop after the entry of Reliance Jio, while the remaining operators have continued to post heavy losses.

Only 25 per cent of the ₹92,641 crore consists of actual dues, with the remaining, including interest, penalty, and interest-on-penalty. “We continue to maintain that VIL remains on a weak footing given the deteriorating financial health, continued subscriber losses, and ongoing integration hurdles. Increased financial pain for VIL will continue to create optional value for Airtel and Jio in a potential duopoly market,” wrote Naval Sheth, research analyst, Emkay Global.

The brokerage estimates that this will lead an increase in operators' debt, rise in licence fee and spectrum usage charge (SUC) payout based on the DoT's formula of AGR and risk to Bharti Infratel's tenancies with VIL's rising financial stress. It is not clear whether Tata Tele's penalty (₹13,000 crore) will be borne by Airtel.

An analyst, who did not wish to be named, said in case of an upfront payment, this move could drive VIL to bankruptcy given that the telco has been trailing Airtel and Jio in performance for the past two years now.

Further, the payment will substantially drive up the net debt to Ebitda ratio of the incumbent operators.

“This order comes at a time when the operating metrics of the telcos were showing some signs of improvement, which along with the recent attempts to inorganically de-leverage the balance sheets, was expected to assuage the debt metrics to some extent. However, these charges will weaken the debt metrics of the industry and protract the recovery in the sector,” said Ankit Jain, assistant vice-president, ICRA.

Clock ticking for a 2-horse race

SURAJEET DAS GUPTA
New Delhi, 24 October

Thursday's Supreme Court order could hasten the process of the departure of another private telecom player, reducing the number to just two. It will also give a big boost to Reliance Jio, which has to pay a minuscule amount compared to its two key rivals, making it easier for them to achieve their targets.

The verdict will also provide a relief to the government, which is reeling under the problem of controlling its fiscal deficit with some extra revenue. The extent of reprieve will, however, depend on the time frame, in which the telcos have to pay the amount, and if the government is ready to provide financial concessions to the telcos in paying their dues to the government, including a moratorium on payment of spectrum for two years.

The seriousness of the impact can be gauged from the fact that the total revenues of the industry last financial year were around ₹261,991 crore, but the adjusted gross revenue (AGR) was ₹180,728 crore, and the Ebitda only ₹53,953 crore, which is half of what they have to pay out due to the SC order. This does not include the interest payment burden on a debt of over ₹4 trillion on the books of the current telecom players.

Vodafone India (VIL), which has to fork out the highest amount of over ₹28,308 crore (which does not include spectrum usage charges it has to pay), faces a serious financial challenge. This was reflected in the fact that the company's shares on Thursday fell steeply by 26.55 per cent

TELCOS' FINANCIALS

	FY18	FY19
Gross revenue (₹ cr)	245,980	224,243
AGR (₹ cr)	150,423	138,635
Ebitda (₹ cr)	33,775	30,550
PAT (₹ cr)	-50,436	-36,033

and its market cap went down to ₹12,300 crore, which is more than half of what it has to fork out by the SC order.

The company, based on an ICICI Securities report, has provisioned only ₹10,771 crore for demands from DoT, which includes AGR on its FY19 balance sheet, which is a third of what it has to pay. With a heavy gearing of 20X of Ebitda, despite the infusion of funds through a rights issue of ₹250 billion, JM Financial, in its report during Q1FY 20 result, had projected that together with sale of its Indus Towers stake 'the business could be funded till June-July 2020'. It had also pointed out that fibre monetisation could help them ensure funding till December 2020.

But with the new SC order, the company might have to raise more equity once again, or sell its assets faster. The question is whether the promoters would still find the business future attractive, especially when it is losing subscribers in droves and is in a loss, and put in more money.

The move will also put more pressure on the financials of Bharti Airtel, but Bank of America Merrill Lynch gives a buy option for the telco, saying that a weaker third player is positive for competition perspective for Airtel, as it could lead to a faster-than-expected increase in its revenue market share.

Airtel has factored a contingent liability of ₹6,000 crore, which is only part of its total liability of ₹21,000 (excluding SUC) on the case; one reason why the share price fell and recovered later on.

The big beneficiary will be Reliance Jio, which has to pay just over ₹13 crore (excludes SUC). It would take advantage of the pressures, which the two incumbent operators will be facing, to aggressively woo customers to its fold so that it can achieve its target — acquire 500 million customers from 350 million now.
